Fruit Trees in Michigan.—The people of Michigan show their good taste by turning early attention to the cultivation of good fruit. The Detroit Advertiser states that rising 18,000 trees of choice fruit have been sold the past season at the Ypsilanti nursery, and a dealer in trees computes that not less than 50,000 trees have been put out in Michigan the past spring. Our Michigan neighbors will be worth visiting in a few years at this rate.
